Jesus Christ is coming to town

PREPARE to be impressed, as one of Britain's best-loved musicals Jesus Christ Superstar comes to town.

Written by Tim Rice and Andrew Lloyd Webber, this show will set your blood racing, telling the story of the last week of Jesus' life based loosely on the gospels' accounts.

And it is Weston's very own Worle Operatic and Dramatic Society which will bring you these special performances, from October 2 to 4 at 7.30pm, with a Saturday matinee performance at 12.30pm.

One of the original rock operas, first staged on Broadway in 1971, Jesus Christ Superstar is seen through the eyes of Judas Iscariot's eyes.

It depicts the political unrest caused by his popularity and preaching, and the depth of his struggle with the expectation of the masses.

Ian Pring hits all the right notes in a mesmerising portrayal of Jesus, opposite Dave Bailey as Judas Iscariot. They are complimented by Amy Badman, who gives a heartfelt performance in the role of Mary Magdalene.

Tickets, priced £18.50, are available from the box office on 01934 645544 or via www.theplayhouse.co.uk
