

Greek mythology at Theatre Tropicana

Jason And The Argonauts.

Classic tales of Greek mythology are on offer at Weston's Theatre Tropicana this week.

Theatre Tropicana, in Marine Parade, will host Four Of Swords Theatre's Jason And The Argonauts and Medea from today (Wednesday) to Saturday.

Featuring film projections and puppetry, Jason And The Argonauts charts an epic quest to find the Golden Fleece – a symbol of authority and status.

Medea is described as a 'terrifying' ancient tale of revenge, featuring sections of stunning choral singing and innovative film work.

Jason And The Argonauts is suitable for children aged eight and older, while Medea is suitable for anyone aged 12 and above.

Jason And The Argonauts will be performed at 2pm each day while Medea will be on stage at 7.30pm.

Tickets, priced £10-20, are available via www.tropicana-weston.co.uk or by calling 01179 020344.

Musical tells true story of equal pay rights

The Made In Dagenham cast.

Picture: BEN HURST

The true story of a campaign for equal pay will take centre stage in a musical at the Blakehay Theatre.

Made In Dagenham will be performed by WODS Musical Theatre Company, who will tell the rousing story of a group of women who brought a Ford production line to a standstill.

The women were about to have their pay grade dropped to unskilled and their strike in 1968 made national headlines as they campaigned for the right to equal pay for equal work.

The musical is based on the 2010 film of the same name, where seamstress Rita takes the issue right to the heart of the Government's trade union committee with Harold Wilson and Barbara Castle contributing to its outcome.

Made In Dagenham will be at the Blakehay Theatre, in Wadham Street, on November 2-4 at 7.30pm, with a 2.30pm matinee on November 4.

Tickets, priced £13.50-14.50, are available from www.worleoperatic.co.uk/ tickets and 01934 645493.
